Headed to Italy for the Art and Design Fairs? Here’s Your Guide to La Dolce Vita in Milan and Puglia

How to have a splendid time in Italy.

In Partnership With NetJets, August 30, 2021

If we were to rank the travel destinations of our lockdown dreams, Italy would surely top the list. With its famously varied and invariably stunning landscape—not to mention the food, the fashion, the fair bit of art history—vacationing on the boot-shaped peninsula is pretty much as good as it gets.

Thankfully, a year and a half after it shut down, the Bel Paese is rebooting. Between Milan’s lively contemporary art and design scene, and the southern pull of Puglia, some would even say the country is having a new Renaissance. And NetJets—the global leader in private aviation—is ready to take you there from top to toe (or heel, in this case).

For discerning travelers looking to rediscover la dolce vita and the joys of a quick jaunt to Italy (with as little as 10 hours’ notice, no less), NetJets offers personalized service with heightened attention to detail gained from more than 55 years of experience, industry-leading standards, and a multilingual team dedicated to anticipating your every need.

Buon viaggio!

PUGLIA: Days 4–5

See and Do: With its turquoise waters, limestone cliffs, olive groves, and many an old masseria (farmhouse), Puglia—the provincial heel of the boot—is the polar opposite of Italy’s fast-paced fashion capital. And lately, it’s become something of a hotspot between the Adriatic and Ionian Seas.

With their respective backgrounds in architecture and real estate, Roman brothers Giorgio and Giulio Angella worked with local craftsmen to restore a ca.-1800 masseria and four 16th-century trulli (traditional Puglian huts with conical limestone roofs) following the principles of bio-architecture. The exclusive-use Ostuni Art Resort houses their collection of contemporary art from Italy and abroad, and up to 16 guests.
